May Hillman Co. Gives Audience Another Surprise.

Aside from the play and the fine production of "Flood Tide" given last night at the opera house by the May Hillman Co., which is playing here all the week the audience were greatly pleased to find the theatre cool and comfortable. This company had advertised that the opera house would be cooled and last night twelve large electric fans were employed to cool the atmosphere. An excellent ice cold grape juice punch was served free to the audience between the acts. This will be continued for the balance of the week. Last night's play was a piece of shore life along the New England coast. The play itself has all that is required to make a success. Heart interest, a good love story, intense moments and a good all round collection of quaint comedy characters. Miss Hillman was as usual charming. In the role of Jess she displayed vivacity combined with an artistic conception, a gift possessed by very few actresses of today. Tonight the great society play "A Wife's Sacrifice" will be produced. All new specialties will be produced between the acts.
